Formal Assignment #1: Digital Portfolio Project

Prompt: Please use weebly.com to build a personal website that serves as a digital portfolio for the texts you author in our English Composition I course.

Website Page Design: Your website design should include these six pages: Home, About, Narrative Project, Research Project, Contact, Blog. For specific details about how to design these pages, please visit: https://www.sabatinomangini.com/digital-portfolio-web-page-design.html

Meaning-Making Modes: As you design your web page content, you decide how and when to integrate linguistic, aural, visual, gestural, and spatial choices.

Genre: The fluid nature of digital writing allows you to compose in multiple genres—including web pages, blog posts, narrations, MLA research texts, reflections, prefaces…and on. Thus, this website is a multimodal and multigenre composition.

Rhetorical Purpose: Inform. Your web page content should inform readers about your author-identity and the processes you enacted to compose your formal assignments.

Focus: Your audience should be able to identify you have created this website to serve as a digital portfolio for an English Composition course.

Style: Construct a design theme that provides consistent fonts, colors, images, and white space on each web page.

Audience: Your primary audience is your instructor and classmates. Your secondary audience is people who visit your website and are not aware of the exigency of this composition.

Process: Review our archived student digital portfolios and our assignment requirements to inform your website authorship. Then, answer these questions:
- What is my author-identity?
- What personal photographs illustrate my writing process?
- What quotes about writing can I add to my web pages to deepen my author-identity?
- What font colors and sizes do I want to use on each web page?
- How can I create a cohesive theme shared between each web page?
- What required and non-required texts can I add to my website to illustrate my author-identity?

Product: This digital portfolio should provide at least six cohesive web pages to deliver both formal and informal assignment content, a clear author-identity, and a cohesive website theme. We will use these criteria to evaluate how your digital portfolio project:

- _____ provides six web pages: Home, About, Narrative Project, Research Project, Contact, and Blog.
